Data retention and how we store data

In accordance with the GDPR, personal data shall not be kept for longer than is necessary for the purposes for which it is being processed.

We employ state of the art computer systems in which to securely store your personal data and only provide access to authorised personnel. We endeavour to take all reasonable steps to protect your personal information and to keep it up to date to ensure that our communication with you, and that of our brand partners, remains as relevant as possible.

Whenever data is transferred in any form we make sure that it is transported in a secure environment and is encrypted with secure password protocols.

Transferring your data outside of the EU

Please note that personal information may be transferred, accessed and stored globally as necessary for the uses and disclosures stated above in accordance with this policy. This will only be done with a contract that has been approved by the European Commission with the recipient of your personal information that provides a suitable level of high quality protection.

Data breaches

Lloyd James Media have a procedure in place if a breach of security leading to the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorised disclosure of, or access to, personal data transmitted, stored or otherwise processed. We will assess the scope and impact of the breach. If, due to the nature of the breach that Lloyd James Media is required to inform the ICO, we will do so within 72 hours of becoming aware of the essential facts of the breach.

Based on the assessment of the likely risks to individuals, we will notify the individuals and/or their connected organisations that a data breach has occurred where this may result in a significant risk to the rights and freedoms of individuals, or where we may be in breach of a contractual obligation. Any such notification to individuals will be carried out as soon as reasonably possible and will include information on the nature of the breach, the name and contact details of our Data Protection representative, the likely consequences of the breach, measures taken or proposed by Lloyd James Media to address it, and recommendations for affected individuals to mitigate any potential adverse effects. Such individuals will also be provided advice on how to make a complaint to the ICO.

Quality standards

Lloyd James Media is a full member of the Direct Marketing Association (DMA), membership of which is a badge of accreditation. We comply fully with the industry best-practice guidelines and all legal requirements including the General Data Protection Regulation (25th May 2018), a code that puts the interests of the individual at its heart. As a member of the DMA we represent a data-driven industry that's leading the business sector in creativity and innovation.

Your right to withdraw

Lloyd James Media respects your rights to your personal data. The GDPR provides the following rights for individuals:

1. The right to be informed
2. The right of access
3. The right to rectification
4. The right to erasure
5. The right to restrict processing
6. The right to data portability
7. The right to object
8. Rights in relation to automated decision making and profiling.

You may have your personal details suppressed from all of our marketing activity at any time. Simply notify us in writing – see “How To Contact Us” at the end of this Privacy Policy. Please provide your contact details so that we can find you on our database.

In addition, there are other methods of opting out from marketing communications:

Postal Marketing: You can easily opt out of postal marketing by registering with the Mail Preference Service (MPS) at <http://www.mpsonline.org.uk/>.

Telephone Marketing: To restrict advertisers from contacting you via telemarketing you can register your details with the Telephone Preference Service (TPS) at <http://www.tpsonline.org.uk/>. Companies who make calls are required to clean their data using the TPS file every 30 days.

Email Marketing: It is best practice for all email communications to carry a link to an unsubscribe function which you can use to unsubscribe to prevent future communications. Additionally, marketing emails normally include the details of the company from whom the email address was sourced in the footer, this should provide enough information for you to identify and contact the company concerned to have your information suppressed from all future activity.

How to make a subject access request

You have the right to receive information about the personal data we hold about you. This information is provided free of charge and we will respond within one month of receiving your request. Please contact us – see “How to contact us” at the end of this Privacy Policy. Please mark your request with “Subject Access Request” and provide your contact details so that we can find you on our database.

How to make a complaint

You have the right to make a complaint at any time to the Information Commissioner’s Office (ICO), the UK supervisory authority for data protection issues (www.ico.org.uk). We would, however, appreciate the chance to deal with your concerns before you approach the ICO so please contact us in the first instance using – see “How To Contact Us” at the end of this Privacy Policy.
